HISTORY

Captain Xavier Jones, born to anthropologist parents, has lived in over eighteen countries during a unique childhood. From Inuit villages along the Bering Straight to Bedouin camps in the Sahara, Jones has been exposed to a myriad of cultures, religions and languages. An only child, the indigenous people that hosted his family became his surrogate siblings and extended family. It was an Aboriginal 'clever man' that first spotted and nurtured Jones's gift of second-sight and astral projection. As a hobby, Jones began collecting and studying divination systems from every culture he visited (many of which he still carries with him on every mission). After his unorthodox upbringing, he joined the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. Upon graduation, he joined the intelligence community as an analyst.

RECRUITMENT

Jones's ability to make dead-on predictions of Russian submarine positions using little more than a map and pendulum earned him the nickname "X-Mark" (as in "X Marks the Spot") among his colleagues. Legend of his accuracy spread throughout the industry and DOW officials began to covertly monitor his work. The results were staggering, and clearly aided by paranormal abilities. Contact was made by Captain Devin Ross and Jones was brought in. He is now the second most senior officer in the Jericho team and is Ross's right-hand man. Jones is a walking encyclopaedia of arcane knowledge, and carries multiple journals, maps and texts in his BDU, along with the tools of his trade as a seer, including several fortune-telling and scrying devices.

OCCULT RESOURCES

Jones is a seer, which allows him brief, albeit often cryptic, glimpses of past or future events. Using his second sight, he can spot paranormal elements that others cannot. He can also project his consciousness into a separate host body.

COMBAT RESOURCES

Given Jones' background in desk-intelligence, understandably he is the least experienced of the Jericho squad in combat. However, in addition to basic training received at Annapolis he has undergone fast-track training during his year on the Jericho Squad, and is equipped with both short and medium range weaponry.
