HISTORY

Frank Delgado is of mixed Mesitzo and Chickasaw descent and spent much of a troubled youth in and out of foster homes until distant relatives on an Oklahoman reservation took him in. Finding a much needed cultural identity, Delgado poured his body and soul into Chickasaw spiritualism and the pursuit of shamanic wisdom. This included the intensive study of chemistry, pharmacology and botany as he came to consider himself a modern day alchemist. Through his studies he learned to summon a fire-based entity, which Delgado presumes to be the Chickasaw spirit Ababinli, but he was unable to control it. Delgado travelled the world and made contact with similar spirits in Borneo, Mongolia and Lithuania in order to harness the spirit's enormous power and request its bidding.

RECRUITMENT

Frank Delgado has always had a deep-rooted anti-authority streak. In order to fund his increasingly expensive research he used his knowledge of psychoactive drugs and chemistry in violation of international narcotics laws. This brought him to the attention of the DEA and the Chinese government. He was less than twenty-four hours from execution in Beijing when the Department of Occult Warfare, who had been tracking his development for some years, were forced to intervene. His liberation was arranged on the condition that he would be recruited into the Jericho Squad and trained in Occult Warfare. He has proved a powerful, if troublesome, asset.

OCCULT RESOURCES

Frank Delgado is a Pyromancer, roughly translated as one who speaks with fire. In Delgado's case, the fire he speaks with is an entity of living flame that he says is Ababinili, a Chickasaw flame spirit. After contacting the spirit, Delgado offered it his right arm as a sacrifice to win its cooperation. The creature of living flame now lives as a parasite on Frank's arm during missions, encased and contained in a large metal sleeve. In combat, Frank opens the containment sleeve and releases Ababinili. Ababinili responds (usually) to Delgado's commands, and so becomes a formidable tool and weapon. When the spirit is loose, Delgado endures intense pain until its return, when the parasitic spirit soothes its host.

COMBAT RESOURCES

Sgt. Frank Delgado is Jericho Squad's heavy weapons expert and an intimidating opponent for any enemy. Since Delgado's right arm is encased in a large metal sleeve to contain Ababinili he has had custom designed weapons that can be operated and reloaded with just one arm thanks to specially installed mechanisms on his body armour.
